WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The first open move for a compromise in the league of nations fight came from administration quarters today, enmeshed in a proposal that the senators adopt interpretative reservations but that they be kept apart from the actual ratification of the treaty.

The overture met with no immediate success on the republican side of the chamber, senators of the republican reservation group declaring they could not recede from their proposition that to be effective the interpretation must go into the ratification pact.

Senate Pittman of Nevada, a member of the foreign relations committee, presented the compromise proposal in the form of a resolution embodying in effect the reservations agreed on by seven republican senators and declaring them to constitute the senate's understanding of disputed points in the treaty.

Motion Go In Part.

It is expressly provided in the resolutions "it made a part of the treaty by the instrument of ratification" a provision which Senator Mc-Namee of Oregon, and others of the group of seven republicans said they considered absolutely necessary if enough republican votes were to be gained to secure ratification of the treaty.

To overcome this objection, Senator Pittman proposed in a speech in the senate that the reservation be adopted at once and submitted to the other powers who will be represented in a league council. A general debate developed during Senator Borah, republican, and others took exception to President Wilson's distinction between moral and legal obligations under the covenants as expressed in yesterday's white house conference between the president and the foreign relations committee.

Although Senator Pittman said he had not submitted his resolution to the president's approval, he asserted that it carried into effect Mr. Wilson's views on the subject of reservations as expressed to the committee yesterday. He indicated his desire that the administration would go further toward a compromise because it feared that inclusion of the reservations in the application would re-open the negotiations with Germany.

Leaders of the McNamee group nevertheless insisted they had informed that in the end their plan would have democratic support.

An attack on the Shantung provision of the treaty was made in the Senate by Senator McCormick, republican, Illinois, who asserted that accepting the provision the United States would be a party to one of the most outrageous exhibitions of hypocrisy and violence in the world's history.

The Shantung provision also was held in consideration before the foreign relations committee, which was led by Dr. J. C. Ferguson, adviser to China's president, that China re-accepted American acceptance of the covenants as a deviation from the traditional policy of American friendship with the Chinese government and people.

The Pittman resolution follows. That when the senate of the United States shall advise and consent to the ratification of the treaty of alliance with Germany, signed at Paris on the 28th day of June, 1919, now pending in the senate, that it be so done in consideration of the existing understanding as to the present and future construction and interpretation to be given to the same.

That whenever the two years of withdrawal from the League of Nations shall have been given by the members of the league, as provided in Article I, the government acting alone shall be the sole judge whether all its international obligations and all its obligations under the covenants shall have been fulfilled at the time of withdrawal.

That the suggestions of the members of the league of nations as regards carrying into effect the provisions of Article I to the extent of which may require the use of military or naval forces or economic measures can only be carried out through the voluntary cooperation of each of the respective
